RHODA HOWARD specializes in the sociology of human rights and development in Africa, and the sociology of women. Her publications include books on Colonialism and Underdevelopment in Africa (1978), Human Rights in Commonwealth Africa (1986), and the International Handbook of Human Rights (with Jack Donnelly, 1987). Her articles have appeared in the Human Rights Quarterly, Ethics and International Affairs, the American Political Science Review, the International Political Science Review, Canadian Public Policy and many other scholarly journals. Her current research on human rights and the search for community is funded by a five-year grant from SSHRC.

A professor of sociology and associate member of the department of political science at McMaster University, Rhoda Howard is also the editor-in-chief of the Canadian Journal of African Studies and a human rights consultant for the Department of External Affairs and the Canadian International Development Agency. She earned her Ph.D. in sociology at McGill University.
